Message from T/Inspector Sarah Jope

With the lighter nights and the warmer weather upon us I encourage residents to be vigilant with the security of their homes and boats. The warm weather prompts an influx of visitors to the area, whom we all welcome, but this can also create an opportunity for thieves. Think about your home security and don't leave doors and windows open or unlocked. Report any suspicious vehicles or people to us if you see them, don't presume someone else will call us. Look out for your neighbours too as a close knit community promotes crime prevention and makes places less attractive to a thief.

Message from your Engagement Officer

North Norfolk Police and Norfolk Trading Standards are warning residents to be on their guard against cold callers. Individuals are cold calling by phone or on the doorstep across North Norfolk attempting to sell artwork, various domestic items or offering to do unnecessary work at an excessive price. Police have been taking positive action and if callers are found not to be in possession of a Pedlar's Certificate those responsible are interviewed, reported to court and all their items seized. Police are advising the public to call the police on 101 should a cold caller visit them and make any elderly or vulnerable relatives and neighbours aware. Trading standards advise that those who need work done should visit the Norfolk Trusted Trader website: www.norfolk.gov.uk/trustedtrader.
